

If I choose to pay for a service that does not break a law or is immoral, I should be able to so and since the same information is transmitted on the air waves for everyone to hear free of charge. I like the idea of having the information available to me all the time and not every once in a while like the others. They won't run the information the way XM will provide it and you can not let them stifle new ideas to protect their profit center. My company has to compete against others and competition will kill me or make me stronger and in turn it will give the american public better products and services. You shouldn't punish someone for building a better trap.
